

Contributors

Anubha Anushree is a graduate student in the Department of History, Stanford University (2014). She previously taught English literature at Rajdhani College, University of Delhi (2009), and worked as a Fellow at the Institute for Life-long Learning (2012–14). She obtained her BA, MA and M.Phil. degrees from the University of Delhi, and then held a Fulbright Scholarship at Stanford University (2009–10). Her current repertoire of research commitments involves postcolonial studies, modernity and theories of selfhood. She has presented academic papers in various national and international conferences, including ‘Art in Translation’ (in Reykjavik, 2012), ‘Visual Spaces’ (in Chennai, 2012), ‘Decolonizing Theatre’ (at the Banaras Hindu University, 2011) and ‘Figuring the Past’ (at the University of Delhi, 2011). This is her first published research paper.

Ipshita Chanda is Professor of Comparative Literature at Jadavpur University, Kolkata. She was a Visiting Professor at the University of Hyderabad (2012) and at the Georgetown University, Washington DC (2013–14). She is the author of Reception of the Received: European Romanticism, Rabindranath and Suryakant Tripathi ‘Nirala’ (Jadavpur University, Kolkata, 2007), Packaging Freedom: Feminism and Popular Culture (Stree, Kolkata, 2003) and Tracing the Charit as a Genre: An Exploration in Comparative Literature Methodology in the series ‘Papers in Comparative Literature’ (Jadavpur University, Kolkata, 2003). Her current interests include the methodology of Comparative Literature, the ‘Namah’ as a cross-cultural genre and Third World feminism.

Md. Serazul Islam received his BBA, MBA and Ph.D. (in Business Administration) degrees from the Islamic University, Bangladesh. He is currently an Associate Professor of Accounting at the School of Business, Bangladesh Open University. He is the author of the book Entrepreneurship and Small Enterprise Development in Bangladesh: The Role of Supporting Institutions (Lambert, 2012). He has published a number of articles in international academic journals including the Indian Journal of Open Learning, India (2015); Malaysian Journal of Distance Education, Malaysia (2014); ABAC Journal, Thailand (2013); and Southern Journal of Entrepreneurship, Georgia (2010). He is a member of the editorial boards of International Multidisciplinary e-Journal, India; Universal Journal of Accounting and Finance, USA; Asian Journal of Management Sciences and Economics, Pakistan; and Journal of Business Management and Administration, USA.

Najnin Jahan is Assistant Professor of Philosophy at the Bangladesh Open University (2008–). She obtained her BA, MA and M.Phil degrees from Jahangir nagar University, Dhaka. Her research papers have been published in the Malaysian Journal of Distance Education (2014); the International Journal of Humanities and Social Sciences (2012); and the Asian Journal of Distance Education (2009).

Sukrita Paul Kumar, born and brought up in Kenya, is a poet and critic. She holds the Aruna Asaf Ali Chair at the Cluster Innovation Centre, University of Delhi, and has taught English literature at the Zakir Hussain Delhi College, University of Delhi (1976–2014). A former Fellow of the Indian Institute of Advanced Study, Shimla, she is an Honorary Fellow of the International Writing Programme, University of Iowa, as also of the Hong Kong Baptist University. She has been a recipient of many fellowships and residencies. Her critical works include Narrating Partition and The New Story. She has published many books of poems including Dream Catcher, Poems Come Home (with facing-page translations in Hindi by Gulzar) and Without Margins. Her edited/co-edited books include Speaking for Herself: Asian Women's Writings.

Provakar Palaka teaches English at Swami Shradhanand College, University of Delhi (2002–). He obtained his Ph.D. from Jawaharlal Nehru University with a dissertation titled 'Politics of Writing: A Study of Dalits in Odia Literature'. His areas of interest are Dalit literature, Odia literature, Indian literature and Postcolonial literature. He has previously published 'Dalit Literature in Higher Education' in the Language Forum (2007) and 'Impact of Buddhism on Odia Dalit Literature: A Reading of Basudev Sunani's poetry' in Buddhism and Dalit: Vision of Modern India. He is also a creative writer and some of his writings have been accepted for publication in the anthology Dalit Writings from Eastern Regions (forthcoming, Oxford University Press, New Delhi).

Azher Hameed Qamar is Lecturer in the Department of Psychology, University of Management and Technology (UMT), Lahore, Pakistan and a Ph.D. student at the Norwegian Center for Child Research, Norwegian University of Science and Technology (NTNU), Trondheim, Norway from where he earlier obtained his M.Phil. in 'Childhood Studies' which was later published as Challenges Associated with Primary Education in Rural Punjab, Pakistan (Lambert, 2014). His Ph.D. thesis is titled 'Infant Healthcare: Belief and Practices in Rural Punjab, Pakistan'. His other publications include 'Bringing up a Daughter: Islamic Perspectives and Muslim Societies' in Psykologisk Tidsskrift (2010) and 'Belief in the Evil Eye and Early Childcare in Rural Punjab, Pakistan' in Asian Ethnology (forthcoming).

Kavita A. Sharma, Ph.D. in English (Delhi, 1978) and LLM (British Columbia, 1986) is the President, South Asian University, New Delhi. She taught at Hindu College, University of Delhi (1971–98), where she had earlier been a student and had then served as its Principal (1998–2008). She was subsequently the Director, India International Centre, New Delhi (2008–14). She has received an Indo-Canadian Shastri Fellowship twice (1991–92 and 2002–03) and also been a Fulbright Fellowship New Century Scholar (2007–08). Her publications include Hindu College, Delhi—A People's Movement (2014); Sixty Years of the University Grants Commission: Establishment, Growth and Evolution (2013); Internationalization of Higher Education: An Aspect of India's Foreign Relations (2008); Queens of the Mahabharata (2006); and Birds, Beasts, Men and Nature in the Mahabharata (2006). She has also published several research articles on higher education, gender issues, the Indian diaspora and The Mahabharata.

Rosy Singh is Assistant Professor in the Department of Germanic & Romance Studies, University of Delhi (2004–). She obtained her Ph.D. from Jawaharlal Nehru University on Franz Kafka (1997). She is the author of Franz Kafka and Literary Criticism (vdm, Germany, 2010); an edited volume Autobiography: Fact and Fiction (Aryan, Delhi, 2009); Tagore, Rilke, Gibran: A Comparative Study (IIAS, Shimla, 2002); and Rilke, Kafka, Manto. Semiotics of Love, Life and Death (Harman Publishers, Delhi, 2001). She has also published research articles in Sprachkunst, a journal of the Austrian Academy of Sciences and Weimarer Beitrage (Berlin). She has translated poems of the Punjabi Sufi poet Shah Hussain and Saadat Hasan Manto's story 'The Dog of Tetwal' into German. She has also published articles on Thomas Mann, Peter Handke and Milan Kundera.

Sakshi Soni obtained both her MA in English literature and M.Phil. in Comparative Indian Literature from the University of Delhi. She has been teaching as Assistant Professor (ad hoc) at the Institute of Home Economics, University of Delhi since 2013. She has presented research papers in several national and international conferences in Delhi and beyond, and has published 'Mapping the Dark One: Krsna in the Mahabharata' in Interdisciplinary Alternatives in Comparative Literature (2013, Sage Publishers, New Delhi). This paper constituted a part of her M.Phil. dissertation titled 'Pluralistic Epistemology: Mythicising and Ritualising Draupadi in the Mahabharata Tradition' (2012) which she completed in the Department of Modern Indian Languages and Literary Studies, University of Delhi.

Shivangini Tandon is a Ph.D. student in Medieval Indian History at the University of Delhi. She has worked as Assistant Professor in various colleges of the University of Delhi, including St. Stephen's College where she was earlier a student. Her M.Phil. dissertation (2012) was on the representation of the Mughal court culture in various tazkiras (biographical narratives). Her publications include 'Imperial Control and the Translation Project: Appropriation of Medieval Sources in British Writings on India' in the Indian Historical Review (2014) and 'The Liminals in the Lives of the Elites: Marginal Social Groups in Mughal Tazkiras' in Social Scientist (forthcoming). She was interviewed by the BBC on Nur Jahan for the documentary 'World made by Women' (telecast in June 2015).

Karen Thornber is Professor of Comparative Literature and East Asian Languages and Civilizations at Harvard University. Her research and teaching focus on world literature and the literatures and cultures of East Asia and the Indian Ocean Rim. She is the author of two multiple international prize winning books: Ecoambiguity:

Environmental Crises and East Asian Literatures (Michigan, 2012) and Empire of Texts in Motion: Chinese, Korean, and Taiwanese Transculturations of Japanese Literature (Harvard, 2009) and more than five dozen articles on diaspora, postcolonialism, translation, trauma, world literature, the environmental and medical humanities. Thornber's current projects include books on world literature and health; literature and climate change; leprosy and culture; and cultural contacts between East Asia and the Indian Ocean Rim.

Yuan ZHANG (张远/張遠) is Assistant Research Fellow, Institute of Foreign literature, Chinese Academy of Social Sciences (2013). She obtained a double BA degree in English and in Art Studies, an MA in Comparative Literature and World Literature and a Ph.D. in South Asian Studies from Peking University jointly with Harvard University (2013), with a dissertation titled 'A Comprehensive Study on Harṣavardhana, or Śīlāditya, 590–647 AD'. She has published articles in Chinese on 'Appearances of the Buddha and Singularity Appearance of the Saint in Ancient China' and 'Origin and Development of Legends of Kanyākubja in India.' Her current project involves a translation of Harṣavardhana's dramas from Sanskrit to Chinese. This is her first publication in English.